Mortgage Lending by Non-Banks Increased at Fast Pace in 2015, DBO Report Shows

Number of Loans Up 47%; Principal Grew 57%

SACRAMENTO – Mortgage lending by non-banks in California increased substantially in 2015, measured both in volume and principal amount, according to a report released today by the Department of Business Oversight (DBO).

“It’s only one indicator, but this data points to the continued good health of California’s housing market,” said DBO Commissioner Jan Lynn Owen. “The numbers are cause for encouragement, but not giddiness. DBO will remain on guard against the bad underwriting and unfair business practices that crashed our economy and inflicted financial hardship on millions of Californians.”

Today’s report presents consolidated data from unaudited annual reports filed with the DBO by mortgage lenders and servicers licensed under the California Residential Mortgage Lending Act. It’s the first such report ever issued by the DBO.

“Non-banks’ share of the mortgage market has grown substantially in recent years, and California is no exception” said Owen. “That’s why we thought it was important to start sharing this data with the public and policymakers. And, fortunately, technology upgrades have made it easier for us to do that job.”

Licensed lenders originated 537,757 mortgages in 2015, up 47.3 percent from 2014’s total of 365,045, according to the data. The aggregate principal for mortgages originated in 2015 grew 56.7 percent from 2014, to $179.3 billion from $114.4 billion. The 2015 principal amount represented a 364.5 percent increase from 2008’s low point of $38.6 billion, according to the report. Still, last year’s total was 29.6 percent below the $254.8 billion recorded in 2006.

On the servicing side, the aggregate average principal amount of loans serviced by licensees each month increased 7.4 percent in 2015, to $766.2 billion from $713.1 billion in 2014, the data showed. This number hit a low of $234.7 billion in 2009.

Licensees reported completing 16,246 foreclosures in 2015, down 3.6 percent from the 2014 total of 16,853. In 2012, the first year the DBO started collecting such data, licensees reported completing 18,468 foreclosures.
