

Guide to the DBO Self-Service Portal Registration Process for Securities and Franchise Filers

The Department of Business Oversight (DBO) Self-Service Portal allows securities Issuers and Franchisors to submit Securities and Franchise filings electronically. The DBO Self-Service Portal is also sometimes referred to as “DocQNet.”

This guide provides information specific to securities and franchise filers. Do not use this guide if you are any other type of filer. Note that this guide uses the term “register” to refer to the process of establishing a Portal account, which should not be confused with franchise registration.

Reference Numbers

Organization Identification Number (Org-ID)

Each Issuer or Franchisor is assigned a permanent unique identification number known as an “Org-ID.” This number references the Issuer or Franchisor in the DocQNet database. A single Franchisor may have multiple Org-IDs if they offer multiple franchise programs (e.g., one Org-ID is assigned to a unit franchise program and another Org-ID is assigned to a sub-franchisor program and another Org-ID is assigned to an area representative program). A new Org-ID will be assigned if an Issuer or Franchisor reorganizes as a different type of business entity (e.g., reorganizing from a corporation to an LLC).

Application Identification Number (App-ID)

Each application filed with the DBO will be assigned a unique identification number known as an “App-ID.” This number references a specific application filed and stored in the DocQNet database. For example, Post-Effective Amendments, Renewals, Advertisements, Material Modification, Notices of Violation and Repurchase Offers are all considered separate applications and will each be assigned their own App-IDs.

You will be taken to a new registration page that contains two options: “Register Option-A” and “Register Option-B.”

Option A

Option A accounts are used to submit only notice filings. Option A accounts are not linked to a specific Issuer, Franchisor, or Org-ID. If you have an Option A account, you can file notices for multiple Issuers and Franchisors without having to create separate accounts for each Issuer or Franchisor. DBO staff will process any notices submitted using Option A accounts and will either create a new Org-ID for the notice or link the notice to an existing Org-ID in the DocQNet database.

In most cases, you would only select Option A if you are a law firm that represents multiple clients or if it's very unlikely you will ever need to file a securities or franchise application.

Option A accounts are active as soon as you receive e-mail confirmation of your Portal registration.

Option B

Option B accounts can be used to submit both application and notice filings. Unlike Option A accounts, Option B accounts are linked to a specific Org-ID. When you create an Option B account, DBO staff will create a new Org-ID (or link the account to an existing Org-ID if you are an existing filer), and you will only be able to file documents for the Org-ID associated with the account.

You must select Option B if you need to file any type of securities or franchise application.

Option B accounts will only become active once approved by DBO staff, which may take 3-5 business days.

NOTE: If you represent a single Issuer or Franchisor and believe you will only ever file notices, you can select either option.

Registering Under Option A

If you select Option A for notices only, you will see the following screen:

Additional Notes Regarding the DBO Portal

Uploading Additional Documents

If you have an Option B account, you can use your account to upload supplemental documents or responses to comments (e.g., pre-effective amendments) to an existing application only if you submitted your application electronically initially.

Submitting Pre-Effective Amendments

If you receive a comment letter from the DBO on a pending application and need to submit a Pre-Effective Amendment, you should log into your account and from the My Account page, locate the "Upload Documents" link on the left-hand side and select the application you want to submit additional documentation for. Do not select "File an Application," as doing so will submit your additional documentation as a Post-Effective Amendment. This will cause delays, and you will be charged an unnecessary fee.

Document Formats

Documents uploaded electronically should be in PDF format only. Do not submit Word documents or photographs (e.g., jpeg, png, tiff, etc.). Any documents that are not in PDF format will be deemed "missing."
